RIBBON FAD IS NOTICEABLE IN REALM OF STYLE

All Widths of Velvet, Taffeta and Faille Favored; Also Wonderful Colorings of Dresden and Metallic Materials.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.)

New York, April 1.—Sulvey-mol, Jeanne homme, gaily invite the ribbon fad from the realm of a dainty. French garden hat. And floating from every conceivable point on the dainty lingerie, or silk from this summer, for ribbons are the trimmings favored by fashion for hats, frocks, blouses, petticoats and parasols. Many a frock, slightly passe, has been given a new lease of life by this ribbon fad. If hopelessly worn around the lower edge, a width of ribbon, wide or narrow, according to the need, is added, making the frock more attractive if anything, than when it was in its first youth.

Ribbon Bodies of Evening Gowns.

The entire bodies of many of the dainty net and taffeta frocks for dan-ing at evening wear, is formed of wide satin, taffeta, or one of the fantastic, beautifully embroidered, or metallic ribbons. To fashion one of these ribbon bodies is simple enough; the ribbon is merely draped about the waist, well over the bust in front and brought down in back to form a V, finishing in a large, softly-tied bow. The transparent material of the frock itself usually veils the ribbon adding a still softer, more graceful effect.

The Ribbon Pannier or Farthingale.

Many of our skirt draperies, which carry out the demand for the bouffant effect about the hips, constituting the new silhouette, are effected with ribbon. On a most attractive model of dark gray taffeta, with the new Promet collar was a drapery of wide black velvet ribbon, pleated over the hips to stand out stiffly, coming down front and back in straight lengths, looping at the bottom to form a pannier. The effect was most attractive, and it was a touch which any woman with clever fingers can apply to almost any frock with equally good results.

Children of all widths, and kinds of ribbons, are being made up and sold in the shops as accessories to be added to the frock of voile, linen, or other of the summer seasons. For silk and net dresses, there are metallic ribbons finished with long tassels, ribbon flowers add a touch of effective contrast, or the one needed of color to the summer frock and narrow satin, taffeta, or picot edged faille ribbon is used to band a cuff, edge a collar, or add just a bit of trimming to a straight, full skirt of a simple summer dress.

It would be quite safe to say, in many instances, that the hat is fashioned of ribbon and trimmed with straw, for such is really the case. Many of the summer hats, both large and small, have the crown and most of the brim fashioned of tulle, satin, or moire ribbon, edged perhaps with a band or two of hemp, Milan or angora braid. A particularly pretty hat of Marie Guy's is a wide brimmed black hemp sailor, with crown of wide gray taffeta ribbon crossed and brought down under the brim to form a large loop on each side of the head, framing the face.

Many of the smaller hats have the ribbon crown with high tops of ribbon standing up stiffly about it. Stiff little bows or cockades of ribbon are used to trim the sport hats, which are legion, to accompany the sport suits and dresses. The straight brimmed sailor of some years back is putting in an appearance here and there, as the season advances. This is trimmed usually with a narrow band and bow of moire, tulle, or faille ribbon in the same, or a contrasting tone to the hat. One sees now and then, also, a gaily-colored band on a severe little hat, of Roman striped, or wool-embroidered ribbon.

A ribbon-ruche is a pretty feature of the taffeta dress frock illustrated in the first figure of this letter. It is fashioned of transparent metallic ribbon, banded through the center with a strip of the narrow velvet ribbon which trims the skirt. Wide satin ribbon forms the underbody, and a ribbon rose adds a pretty touch to the completed dress.

THREE MONTHS' TERM SURE FOR SUMMER SCHOOL

Supervisor of Indian Schools in Santa Fe Arranging for Work of Institute of Science and Education.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.)

Santa Fe, April 1.—The New Mexico Institute of Science and Education has been assured three months of summer school activities this year, just as it had two years ago.

H. H. Peairs, of Washington, D. C., supervisor of United States Indian schools, has been in Santa Fe all week arranging for the institute of the Indian school teachers of the southwest.

"It will be bigger than two years ago when 135 teachers attended," he says, "for we are making a special effort to get out every teacher and employee."

The date set is from July 3 to July 15. Mr. Peairs leaves tonight for State College, to arrange with Dr. George E. Ladd for a number of instructors from the Agricultural College, for studies is to be held more than ever on industrial education as adapted to the southwest. Supt. P. C. Snyder, who has just returned from a tour of the Navajo and Ute reservations, has charge of the local arrangements, while Supt. Perry, of Albuquerque, will head the delegations from the outside.

Immediately following the Indian institute will come the Redpath Western Chautauqua for one week, with a real circus tent outfit and Chautauqua attractions. Local business men have guaranteed $1,800 to the Redpath people, forty-five local men having signed the contract for $40 each, which they will have to put up out of their pockets unless they sell enough tickets to cover the amount.

To Begin Excavations.

Beginning with July 15, the School of American Archaeology will begin its excavations on the Puye and beginning August 1, its field summer school will be in session until the end of the month. Before the arrival of the Indian school institute, the Santa Fe county teachers' institute will be in session a month and the program will be such as to attract teachers from all parts of the state.

In addition, excavations at Pecos will begin next month and other field expeditions will be at work all summer among the prehistoric and historic ruins of the immediate vicinity.

From an educational standpoint, therefore, the summer will be a most active one, even without the military camp. The railroads have granted special rates and are advertising Santa Fe's summer events quite widely.

Today, the first consignment of the beautiful eight-page folders advertising the Archaeological Summer School will arrive from Denver, at least the following telegram from F. A. Wadleigh, general traffic manager of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad so indicates:

"Paul A. F. Walter, Secretary, Santa Fe, N. M.

"Fifteen thousand Pajarito Park Summer School folders to you, care of our agent, Scott, tonight. Should reach you tonight. F. A. Wadleigh."

It must be remembered that all of these activities cost Santa Fe nothing, while other communities that maintain Chautauquas must annually dig in their pockets all the way up to $20,000 and $50,000, as was shown by the report of Prof. J. A. Wood and his committee to the Chamber of Commerce some time ago.
